

Montana Singer-Songwriter STEPHANIE DAVIS

Most western music enthusiasts would list Stephanie Davis as one of the best, if not the best, of the genre's songwriters of today. Garth Brooks thought so much of her haunting verse and melody that he recorded six of her songs and had Stephanie join him on tour. Her songs have also been recorded by Martina McBride, Maria Muldaur, Roger Wittaker, Don Edwards, Trisha Yearwood, Sam Moore, and many others. Stephanie was also featured in Hal Cannon's PBS documentary, "Why The Cowboy Sings."

"Up until a few years ago I was one of those who thought that all the great western songs had been written, but that was before I met Stephanie Davis..."
Don Edwards

"...a reflection of the very best in American music of and from its enigmatic West."

Thom Jurek (allmusic.com)

"... songs, beautifully written, most of them being little masterpieces of musical narrative..."

George Graham

"...an exceptional talent...a fantastic songwriter..."

Darrell Arnold (Cowboy Magazine)

A fourth-generation Montanan, Stephanie is a frequent performer on Garrison Keillor's "A Prairie Home Companion", and at cowboy poetry gatherings and festivals throughout the country. She has six titles on her label, Recluse Records. The latest CDs, "Western Bling" and "Western Bliss", are both part of a series, with more to come. Also, a new all-original CD is in the works.
